SUBMISSIONS POLICY

All articles for publication in SFS should be sent to Sherryl Vint via email attachment. Please format your article according to the following guidelines: (1) PC-compatible files only, (2) length: 5,000-15,000 words, (3) on a separate page within the document, include your name, your postal and e-mail addresses, the title of your essay, and a brief abstract describing its contents (5-8 sentences are sufficient); (4) use MLA Style for all documentation, with endnotes and a works cited, and (5) provide English translations for all non-English titles and quotations. In submitting an article for possible publication in SFS, the author warrants that it is not currently under consideration elsewhere and that it has not been published previously in English.

All books submitted for review in the BOOKS IN REVIEW section should be sent to Lisa Swanstrom, Dept. of English, LNCO 3500, University of Utah, 255 Central Campus Dr., Salt Lake City, UT 84112 USA (for American publishers) or to Stephen Dougherty, Bjørndalsheia 49, 4633 Kristiansand, Norway (for European publishers).

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE AND POLICIES

Science Fiction Studies publishes scholarly articles and book reviews on science fiction, broadly defined. All opinions expressed in signed contributions appearing in SFS are those of the author(s); they are not necessarily those of the publisher or editors.

SFS is a refereed and highly selective journal. Our acceptance rate averages less than 30%. All articles submitted to SFS must pass through a three-stage peer review and revision process: (1) the article is first evaluated by the editors of SFS; (2) if the article is judged to be potentially publishable, it is assigned to an SFS editor who will become editor-in-charge and, perhaps after asking for some preliminary revisions, will send it out for blind review to two SFS editorial consultants; and (3) if recommended by the consultants, the editor-in-charge will then work closely with the author to prepare a final version of the article for publication in SFS.
