Editors' Note

This issue includes four articles on the theme of “Globalization and Transformation in Contemporary Korean Society,” edited by Michael Robinson. The articles are based on papers delivered at a summer workshop held in June 2005 at the Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center at Stanford University. We are grateful to Professor Robinson for convening the workshop and for serving as guest editor for this issue. We also thank the Korea Research Foundation and the Pantech Group for their generous financial support. We intend to publish additional theme-based issues in the future.
